

ABSTRACT

A multi-functional golf accessory for storing a variety of golf related tools and items. The accessory includes a base component that is adapted to receive a detachable caddy device and 5 that provides external and internal storage space. The caddy mounts in the base and further includes a body adapted to receive a divot repair device that holds a ball marker, a detachable belt clip, at least one golf tee, and a golf ball or a stroke counting device. The stroke counting device is adapted to be mountable in the caddy device, is substantially spherical in shape, and has substantially the same dimensions as a golf ball. The base includes a front portion having 10 additional storage space for golf balls and tees, and a rear portion having a smooth exterior writing surface, a clip means for holding a score card and a golf pencil, and internal storage compartments.